Description : The '100 Tips' series gives 100 invaluable and practical ideas for teachers of all levels. Citizenship has recently become a compulsory subject within secondary education. Ian Davies gives teachers 100 practical ideas on how to incorporate citizenship into all aspects of teaching.

This is a very useful book. The content, structure, range even the size and price make it a highly welcome addition to the growing bank of support materials available to teachers of citizenship. Ian Davies has consciously avoided the error of many who present lesson plans and worksheets ready for the practitioner to reproduce and pass on to students, with minimal though or active involvement by either party. Much more helpfully, he offers a range of prompts and strategies which require those practitioners to engage with the curriculum and with the needs and aspirations of their students.
